Description

THEODORE CHARLES BASIL HITCHCOCK

Mid Century or slightly earlier scene of men working on a pathway in a French Town.

He was a painter and teacher who studied at Hornsey School of Art, after attending London University, his teachers being Adrian Hill and John Charles Moody

His work is always of the finest quality and this piece in particular has all the quality and skill of his best paintings.

I like the realist quality of the subject, combined with the colors used makes for a very desirable painting.

This piece is an oil on canvas and is framed in its original frame.

It is inscribed on the reverse
